From Matthew Kieran : Media Ethics before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Media Ethics:

Media Ethics brings together philosophers, academics and media professionals to debate pressing ethical and moral questions for journalists and the media and to examine basic notions such as truth, virtue, privacy, rights, offence, harm and freedom which are used in answering them.

"Because its authors are "across the pond," their points of view may be very different from what U.S. readers would expect from a collection on the subject of media ethics... and very useful in advancing their thinking... this slim volume will serve teachers of media ethics- practioners as well as professors- by supplying both a new approach and new concepts."-"Media Ethics, Spring 2001 About the AuthorMATTHEW KIERAN is Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of Leeds, England. He also teaches media ethics and has researched for the Broadcasting Standards Commission in the United Kingdom. His articles on aesthetics, ethics, and social philosophy have appeared in such journals as the Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism and the Journal of Communication.
