Henning Krabbe : Voices from Britain: Broadcasts from the BBC 1939-45 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Voices from Britain: Broadcasts from the BBC 1939-45:

From period-defining oratory - 'We shall fight them on the beaches' - to obscure and illuminating interviews, the radio broadcasts of the BBC are an invaluable archive of material on the Second World War. Voices from Britain tells the history of Britain's involvement in the conflict through the transcripts of the BBC, featuring leaders and commentators such as Churchill, Atlee, Bevin, Chamberlain, de Gaulle, Thomas Mann, FDR, E. M. Forster, and Ed Murrow. Written and researched by critically acclaimed historian Henning Crabbe, it is an important and fascinating contribution to Second World War history

About the Author Henning Krabbe was a wartime Danish announcer, responsible for many broadcasts to occupied countries. He undertook this transcription from the wartime broadcasts in 1947.
