Seemed to include a lot of the same material from "The Art of Mixing". Suggest getting that book instead.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. The Best Guide to Music Production Available By DanZen and the Art of Producing is probably the best book I've ever come across on the topic of music production (I've read quite a few). With his witty, signature style more matured than ever, Mixerman takes the reader on a journey through the process of producing a record, complete with all of the "under-the-hood" thought processes and potential trappings that present themselves along the way. It, at once, teaches you limitless creativity and practical boundaries. And that is to say nothing of the treasure trove of leadership guidance presented on these pages. I would give this book a 10/10 for the provided leadership lessons alone. Simply put, if you're interested in producing recorded music, there is no book I've ever come across that I would more highly recommend! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. I love this author. Insightful and relevant. By J. Ludwig I love this author. Insightful and relevant.

In this companion book to Zen and the Art of Mixing--Mixerman discusses with us the art of producing records. Mixerman lays out the many organizational and creative roles of an effective producer as budget manager, time manager, personnel manager, product manager, arranger, visionary and leader, and without ever foregoing the politics involved in the process. As Mixerman points out, "Producing is an art in which reading and understanding people nearly always trumps any theoretical knowledge - whether musical or technical in nature." Whether you're currently positioned as musician, engineer, songwriter, DJ, studio owner, or just avid music fan, Mixerman delivers a seemingly one-on-one, personal lesson on effective producing.

From the Back Cover "Mixerman is a fearless, erudite and witty writer and thinker. Buy this book. Buy all of Eric Sarafin's books. NOW." --Dave Pensado (Christina Aguilera, Beyonc, Pink)
