This volume completes the set of two books on Zeniths ...By Patrick RoatchThis volume completes the set of two books on Zeniths, 1936-1945 for my library. Between the two volumes you will find nearly any historical information you would need on any of the radios issued during that period. Being a Zenith collector, I find these books very helpful.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Zenith Radio Volumes 1- 3By G. R. HawtreeHere is a very comprehensive collection of material on Zenith radios,i found that all three volumes were well written and presented,from my own perspective as a collector of old valve radios these volumes are invaluable as a point of reference, when reseaching information on different models,well done i am pleased to have them in my library.

These two volumes, Zenith Radio, The Glory Years, 1936-1945, tell the story and highlight the products of the Zenith Radio Corporation between the early years (1919-1935) and the end of World War II. History and Product begins with an exploration of the history of the corporation from 1936-1945 in a profusely researched and illustrated way. It continues with color photographic portraits of outstanding examples of many of the products manufactured by Zenith in this period, providing a visual survey of the wide range of Zenith radios produced during the Glory Years. The Illustrated Catalog and Database includes a catalog that gathers the most complete collection of Zenith images ever published, followed by a Database which is the most complete listing of Zenith products. In addition, appendices to this volume include Commander Eugene MacDonald's Presidential speeches, information on telepathy experiments at Zenith, Zenith in the movies, and Zenith Annual Reports from 1936-1945. All told these two volumes represent a treasure trove for radiophiles in general and Zenith fans and historians in particular.

About the Author Harold Cones teaches at Christopher Newport University in Newport News, VA. John Bryant is a retired professor of architecture and splits his time between Stillwater, OK and the San Juan Islands in Washington State. Harold and John have been researching and writing about Zenith Radio for 15 years, and have written three books on the subject. They are joined for this book by Martin Blankinship, a well-known Zenith collector. Martin resides in Kansas.
